Pictured are Patricia "Pat" Herbert shaking hands with Mitch Silverberg, son of Sid Silverberg, Community House executive director from 1957 to 1970, at the agency's 75th anniversary party on the West Haven Green in 2016. Looking on are Patricia Stevens, current executive director and Mary Jane Morrissey, current board member and past board president of the Community House.

For longtime Board of Directors member Patricia "Pat" Herbert, the Community House, as well as her former school students and many others in West Haven, have been among her extended family. These days, Pat, who first began serving on the Community House Board more than 40 years ago, remains active, even as she is approaching her 100th birthday.

A past Community House Board president, Herbert has served many other local organizations in her time, including the library, Board of Education, Girl Scouts, and religious and civic groups, including being a founding member of the West Haven Land Trust, among others.

Pat was extremely active in the development of the Community House's Head Start program and helped to establish their before and after school child care program in partnership with the West Haven Board of Education. However, her most enduring work has been with the initiation of the Community House Endowment Fund, which was established to ensure that the agency would sustain and thrive for many more years to come. Pat is a long time financial supporter of this fund and urges citizens to consider making a donation or bequest to support the Community House's Endowment

Water Authority looks to upgrade system

About 13,000 Regional Water Authority (RWA) customers in West Haven will have the water industry's latest metering technology installed beginning next month, joining the 50,000 customers in the RWA's water district who have already received the upgrade.

The system will allow the RWA to accurately read customers' water meters by securely transmitting a low-powered signal from an AMI endpoint, a small device connected to the meter, to the RWA's office. This technology will upgrade how the RWA receives water consumption information, eliminate the need for manually reading customers' meters, provide early detection of water leaks and largely eliminate estimated water bills.

The RWA will deploy this new metering system to every customer in its 15-town service area over the next two years. The RWA hired Contract Callers, Inc. (CCI) to install the new advanced meter reading devices. Installation generally takes less than an hour and involves attaching the AMI endpoint to the customer's existing water meter, usually where the existing meter reading device is located.

In some cases, the RWA may need to install a new water meter to ensure compatibility with the device. There is no cost for the new meter reading device or the installation. Customers should receive a letter and a flyer that explains what to expect. Information about the program is also located on the RWA's website, www.rwater.com/AMI. To make it easier for customers to schedule an appointment, please click on the live chat feature at the bottom of this web page: www.contractcallers.com/rwa.

For customers' safety, all RWA and CCI personnel have identification badges. CCI installers wear blue uniforms with a CCI logo. They carry two forms of photo identification: an RWA contractor badge and a CCI badge. The contractor's vehicles are white and have CCI and RWA logos on both sides.

The RWA encourages customers to always ask for identification from anyone who comes to their door and to maintain a "no identification - no entry" policy. Customers can call the RWA at 203-562-4020 to verify that installers are working in their neighborhood. CCI will also register installation activities with local police departments and the RWA's Police Department.

Beating the heat!

Heat and humidity have blanketed the Northeast for the last two weeks, with the most sweltering temperatures felt over the last few days. Residents took refuge along the shore, hoping an on-shore breeze will provide needed relief. Dan Shine's photo, taken near Dawson Avenue shows the humidity hovering over Long Island Sound looking toward Lighthouse Point.

City residents work quickly to save man

A man is alive today as the result of the quick thinking and teamwork of two West Haven men.

While visiting the waterfall at Indian Well State Park, Christian Sandor and Joseph Lombard noticed a drowning taking place in the foamy water at the base of the falls.

Both entered the water immediately and retrieved the victim who by then was unconscious.

Both Sandor and Lombard performed CPR, and once they were satisfied that the victim had resumed breathing on his own, Sandor ran to get help. Authorities were notified, and the victim was taken to Yale-New Haven Hospital by Life-Star Helicopter.

At the time of this writing, the victim's name and further condition have not been released, aside from confirming that the victim was breathing on his own and had a pulse.

Christian Sandor is an Eagle Scout of Troop 802; this fall he will attend SUNY Maritime College in the Bronx, majoring in naval architecture.

Joseph Lombard is currently joining the U.S. Air Force, and will begin basic training in Texas later this month.

He is a 2nd lieutenant of emergency services in the USAF Auxiliary Composite Squadron in Plainville.

Both young men are recent graduates of the Sound School in New Haven.

Dear Felicia

Well honeybunch, before yew know it, the kiddies are gonna be back in school. As we git toward the middle o' the month, we're getting more and more indications that the unofficial end of summer is coming near. Whilst the calendar might indicate that there are about six weeks left to the summer season, once school gits back inta session everything gets into the fall swing o' things. Organizations are picking up their schedules, even the politicos, who have been meeting sporadically over the last couple o' months go back into more normal routines.

Of course, for school kids, the excitement of June gives way to the realization that things will be changing perty quickly. Bedtimes will be earlier, it'll git darker soon, and the early to bed, early to rise school day will be back in swing.

We don't need to know about that so much as to know that with the primary that is scheduled for next week, the Silly Season will be officially underway. Being that there is a federal election this time 'round, the primary is moved up to August, making the Silly Season about three weeks longer. In the old days everything kicked off after Labor Day, but politicos say that those in primaries are at a disadvantage, so the newer schedule.

I don't know who's gonna win, but I will say that lawn signs have popped up all over the place, -- like mushrooms after a thunderstorm. Yew can't go a couple o' blocks without seeing one candidate or t'other's sign. It's even got that they are in grass dividers along Capt. Kangaroo Boulevard. Signs are all up and down for the mile or so that the grass dividers go.

Of course, the airwaves are filled with ad after ad for this candidate or that one. And they all are gonna change what Gov. Dannel Malloy is gonna do -- even the Demmies.

I'll believe that when I see it. So, the long and the short of it is, we're getting back into the regular schedule around here -- whether we want it or not.

I asked Sammy Bluejay effen anybody is having pizza parties or snacks for the seniors at the various senior venues around town -- that's a sure sign that campaigns are underway. The best he could do was say that we probably won't see that until the general election as the assembly candidates try to woo senior voters.

The wag came in t'other afternoon and made mention of the fact that Moody's gave the city a "negative" outlook in its recent update to investors. Of course, nobody is surprised by that bit of news, who would be? The cause, of course, is the city trying to figger out how to get outta the 30-year downturn it's been in, whilst balancing its books.

As yew saw last week, the much anticipated audit from last year's budget came in at a strong $1.4 million deficit. That was a lot higher than the O'Brien administration either knew about or admitted to, probably a bit of both.

The city is working out a five-year plan wherein the city will somehow get its way to solvency. A lotta ink, many trees, and even the Internet has been fixed on this isshe. The city is in the Catch-22 of all Catch-22's. Effen it does what the Municipal Accountability Review Board really wants it to do -- raise taxes bigly -- the For Sale signs we've seen will be nothing compared to what they will be. That means fewer people to pay the bigger taxes and we have another deficit in the making.

This is the elephant in the room that the MARB doesn't wanna acknowledge. Where people in the real world see a cause and effect, the MARB sees what the politicos like to call "stasis." That is a Latin word for "standing" or "static." In other words, they ack as if things are gonna stay the same. They ain't, and they never had. The city has seen an exodus over the last 20 years of many people, and the replacements have been poorer, not richer. There's a reason we have financial problems, and that's one o' them.

So, the wag sees we get a negative from Moody's, but they don't change the bond rating -- to witch he reminds Cobina that it can't git much lower. He's right. It's anybody's guess -- including the MARBs -- effen we git outta this rut we're in, but as the wag notes, nothing coming outta anybody's mouth is new or innovative, just the same raise taxes or bond mantra we've heard for years. One wonders effen we'd have been better off continuing with the deficit, rather than paying it off, and having outsiders come in.

On that same note, Nelly Nuthatch is saying that politicos behind the scenes are beginning to reconcile themselves to the strong possibility MARB is gonna put the city into Tier IV status. Effen it happens, it is expected it will happen sometime during the fall -- probably either just before or just after the general election.

The reason, according to Nelly, is that MARB might wanna have a hand in the new budget-making cycle, which as yew know begins after the foist of the year. Soooo, effen the boys and girls from Hartford are gonna downgrade the city into penal servitude status, it will be in time to begin making the budget for Fiscal Year 2020, beginning July 1 of 2019.

Effen Cobina was a bettin' wommin, which she ain't, she'd say that the chances of MARB putting us in Tier IV got a bit closer with the Moody's report, and kind o' give 'em the rationale needed to make the move. It's all about how you justify things.

Whilst the city is contending with financial strings that are unraveling as we speak, the recent canceling of the bulk trash pick-up for the summer has moved into the Theater of the Absurd. When Cobina got to her domicile one day last week, she was greeted with a telephone message that spoke of dire consequences effen people put their bulk trash out.

The funny thing is, whilst these messages were being freely erased before they were listened to, people were putting out the bulk trash. Heck Cobina was out in the gassamobuggy, and tree branches were out -- all cut to specks, of course, and some people had furniture and other thing out.

The whole episode is kind of a metaphor for the problems were in. Life is supposed to be normal, but it is anything but normal, and, in fact, it's getting more un-normal by the day. And it ain't jest little things, it's a bunch of things that make it a big pain in the posterior regions.

Iva Lootey came by and asked Cobina about Beach Street, something she's been complaining about for years. One wonders, sez Iva, effen the city can get developers to do something over there. It might help boost the city. Of course, with the recent economic news mentioned above, one wonders further effen any developer has the intestinal fortitude to try to go into a berg like ours. Jest think what the possibilities are on Beach Street. Right now, all we have are three or four vacant buildings and lots that are prime for commercial development.

With the bit o' chatter, I'll close this time till next, mitt luff und kizzez,

Cobina

Gripevine

By Eleanore Turkington

Gripe Vine Readers:

Several weeks ago, I placed a request to my readers and all West Haven residents to email Gripe Vine or mail any unattractive sights you would like to see improved in your city. Well, you did and I am so proud of my many, many readers who cared enough to submitted their wishes for improvement in West Haven.

Within the past month, I have submitted over 50 complaints to Mayor Nancy Rossi's Mayoral Executive Assistant Louis Esposito. Within the past two weeks, Gripe Vine has received another 35 more and I haven't checked my email today yet. These complaints represents a collection in numerous areas from abandoned cars, to unsafe roofs to unsanitary public restrooms to foot high grass in projected new building sites to speeding cars to, well...you get the idea.

In last week's column, I published a number of complaints, but certainly not even close to what I have sent to Esposito for investigation.

I am so proud of your cooperation and enthusiasm to overcome blight, trash and unsafe practices in your city.

Please, keep it up and I will do my best to help you with your gripes.

Dear Eleanore Turkington:

There has been a junk of a

car on Roosevelt Avenue for over a year. Can you help get rid of this unsightly vehicle?

Move It Please

Dear Move it Please:

Louis Esposito, the Mayor's Executive Assistant followed up on your gripe and said, "I gave this to the police department and Zoning Enforcement. I thought it was taken care of. Please let me know if this has been taken care of."

To my reader, has this car been removed? Please let me know and if it has not, I will seek a reply from Esposito.

Dear Eleanore Turkington:

Why do some people complain about the Senior Center lunch? They don't pay and they don't call ahead and they are rude to the staff. Please stay home if you are not happy!

The volunteers get all kinds of nasty people with rude comments. I guess you can't make everyone happy.

A Satisfied Senior

Dear Satisfied Senior:

I sent a request to Esposito relating to your letter of a lunch complaint at the Senior Center and he replied, "There is a $3.50 charge for lunch at the senior center if the person can afford it."

Dear Eleanore Turkington:

Please try to have the parking ban enforced in West Haven. I tell my neighbors each year, before each storm and they pretend to not know they need to not have their multiple cars on the street during storms. Please tow them!

A Citizen

Dear Citizen:

According to West Haven regulations, "To help expedite snow removal, the Department of Public Works is reminding residents and businesses to observe parking regulations during and after snowstorms.

"Under normal snow conditions, once snow begins to fall, a parking ban is in effect on the even numbered side of most roads, unless one is posted with a "No Parking" sign on the odd side.

The ban is in effect for 36 hours after a snowstorm. Residents are urged to park in driveways or designated private lots."

Dear Eleanore Turkington:

Can you please fix the clock that they put on the Allingtown Green? What good is it if it's not telling the time and it looks terrible?

RL

Dear RL:

The Mayor's Assistant, Louis Esposito looked into your complaint and responded with, "I spoke to the Department of Transportation and State Rep. Mike DiMassa, who is working on getting the clock fixed."

RL, Please let me know when the clock is working again.

Dear Eleanore Turkington:

It sickens me to see the Veterans Walk of Honor with so many weeds in between the bricks. These are people who fought for our country and a place that should be respected and taken care of.

So many people put money into buying these bricks including myself and the weeds are just going to break through the bricks sooner or later because the city isn't taking care of this anymore.

I was just down there trying to weed some but there is just too much. Please Mayor Nancy Rossi clean this up. It used to be so beautiful. I understand cutting back on things, but not so our city looks lie we aren't taking care of it.

I Care

Dear I Care:

I forwarded your complaint to Esposito. Let's see what happens now. Meanwhile, if my readers have visited this area and do or do not see an improvement, please let me know.

Primaries offer state voters chance for a new direction

Next week, voters in West Haven and Connecticut trek to the polls to select party nominees for both the Democratic and Republican Party tickets. Gov. Dannel Malloy is ending his second term as the state's chief executive, and it is what politicians call a "wide-open field" for not only the nomination, but who will govern the state for the next four years. In this staunchly "blue" state, we hope voters take a couple of concerns to the polls, not only next week, but in November.

Connecticut has the dubious honor of being one of the three most poorly run states in the country, following Illinois and California – not far behind are New York and New Jersey. Not so mysteriously, all these states are run by and have been run by longtime Democratic majorities. But whatever happens in the next few months, the problems faced by Connecticut transcend party, and must be solved by legislative and executive politicians who see the need for a new direction.

Since the 1970s, Connecticut has expanded government, raised taxes and made the state less hospitable to businesses and wealthier residents. In the 1970s Connecticut was a destination state. With the defense industry as the backbone of the state's economy, we lived up to our nickname as the "arsenal of the union."

But the Northeast and Midwest saw a sharp decline in those industries in the 1980s and well into the 1990s. High labor costs, high business costs in the energy sector, primarily, and legislative decisions that saw this declining tax base as a golden goose to be plucked while it could made the state a place to leave – and leave quickly.

While manufacturing exited the state, nothing came in to fill the vacuum. While Connecticut enjoyed a highly educated workforce, there were not enough white collar jobs to make up for the blue collar positions lost. Still, politicians believed expanding government and the budget at three- and four-times the rate of inflation was a winning strategy.

The decline of our state continued through the early 2000s and into today. Now the white-collar jobs in the form of General Electric and other concerns are moving their corporate headquarters out of the state – ironically, they are going to Massachusetts in some instances, another over-spending, over-taxed state.

Meanwhile, the declining tax base has not moved the General Assembly nor the executive to do any real contemplating on where the state should go. As with most politicians of any stripe getting through the next election is the most important thing, not solving the problems that need to be addressed. The proverbial "can" is kicked down the road.

In the last few years, particularly in the waning years of the Malloy administration, the kicking of the can down the road is no longer an option. The state, which suffered in the economic downturn of the late 1980s and 1990s, was hurt further by the downturn of 2007-2008, and it has never recovered.

Instead of making the state attractive to industries and commercial concerns, which bring with them a new injection into the workforce, the General Assembly and the Governor attempted to maintain the status quo. Taxes were raised, new fees added, and with them came the further exodus of younger and wealthier people to other parts of the country. Meanwhile, deficits continues and the nearly $100 million in unfunded liabilities the state has not been addressed Most of that is in the form of generous pension guarantees given to state workers in better days. The dysfunction of current political class was shown last year with the three-month delay in passing a budget for Fiscal Years 2018-2019. The state ran without a budget because necessary cuts were bypassed while taxes were increased. The old tax-and-spend methodology of generations cannot be sustained.

When voters go to the polls next week and beyond, they must see which candidates offer a new solution to old problems. Connecticut became a debtor state primarily because politicians maintained "a champagne taste on a beer pocket-book." There is no will to do the hard decision-making necessary. Candidates both for the General Assembly and the governorship and its secondary offices must offer a new way to get the state out of debt and attractive again. Illinois came close to being the first state in the union to declare bankruptcy. It may not be able to stay out of that condition must longer. Connecticut is not far behind.

A debate on Socialism

By Rich Lowry
Syndicated Columnist

It's begun. We are having a debate over socialism.

Not over whether it's fair to call Democrats socialists. Not over whether socialism has been good for Venezuela or some other faraway, unfortunate country. But socialist policies right here in the United States.

The press attention to a new study of the costs of "Medicare for all," or universal health coverage paid for by the government that goes much further than Obamacare, is a sign that it is a live issue.

Popularized by Bernie Sanders, Medicare-for-all is not just a fringy left-wing talking point anymore. It's a plank of a growing element of the Democratic Party. A raft of prospective Democratic presidential candidates has endorsed the policy, while about a third of the Democratic members of the House have joined a caucus devoted to it.

The good news for Sanders and Co. is that, in the wake of the failure of an attempted GOP repeal of Obamacare, the health care debate is clearly moving left. The bad news is that Medicare-for-all is still a completely batty, politically unserious idea.

The new study of its costs, from the conservative Mercatus Center, concludes that Medicare-for-all would increase federal spending by almost $33 trillion during the first 10 years. The study notes that "it would be less expensive to the federal government to triple all projected appropriations," and that "doubling all currently projected federal individual and corporate income tax collections would be insufficient to finance the added federal costs of the plan."

Supporters of the idea impeached the credibility of the findings based on their source, yet a study by the centrist Urban Institute in 2016 found exactly the same thing.

The costs aren't merely a theoretical matter. Vermont, the home of Bernie Sanders, abandoned a single-payer proposal after the Democratic governor concluded that it wasn't fiscally sustainable. Despite its Democratic supermajorities, California gave up on a single-payer proposal last year for the same reason -- the projected cost was twice as much as the state budget.

The upside is that Medicare-for-all purports to save on overall health care spending by ratcheting down payments to health care providers. Medicare does indeed pay less to hospitals than private insurers, but it's not clear that this would be sustainable if hospitals could count on only Medicare-level payments.

Since Medicare-for-all would eliminate insurance premiums and provide health care free of charge, it would create an incentive for more usage, and more health care expenditures.

All of this is why the natural gravity in a single-payer system is toward brute-force price controls and rationing to

Members sought for Sustainability Team

The city's new Sustainability Team is looking for members. The Sustainability Team, also known as the Green Team, will help manage West Haven's sustainability efforts by identifying resources and opportunities and creating an action plan for enhancing and developing the city's capacity to thrive as a community — economically, environmentally and culturally. Ideally, the team will consist of members from different backgrounds who are enthusiastic about making West Haven more sustainable. It is helpful if members have some knowledge of sustainability issues; however, the most important factor is a willingness to engage in the process.

The Sustainability Team will hold regular meetings and create a plan toward reaching the benchmarks outlined in the Sustainable CT program, such as recycling, energy conservation and shoreline restoration. Send letters of interest by Aug. 15 to Kristen Teshoney in the mayor's office at kteshoney@westhaven-ct.gov. For more information, visit <https://sustainablect.org/>

Giannattasio gets nod for 14th

As a former candidate for the 14th State Senatorial seat, I am giving my full endorsement to Anthony "Tony G" Giannattasio and I am asking that Republican voters support Tony in the Aug. 14 primary.

The reasons are clear. Tony is a respected and successful businessman, a life-long Republican and the Minority Leader on the Milford Board of Aldermen. He has held the line on taxes in Milford and has supported smart development. He and his family have volunteered for many local groups and non-profits. Tony gives back many hours to his community and the people he serves. I would expect no less from him when he is elected State Senator.

Unlike his opponent, who is currently a Republican State Representative, Tony would not betray the people of his district by supporting undocumented citizens to compete with US citizens.

As the ranking member of the education committee, State Representative Pam Staneski, Tony's Republican opponent, enthusiastically supported a bill which passed and was signed into law by Dan Malloy. Joining with the Democratic House majority, the bill allows undocumented students the right to apply for financial aid from our public universities, putting them in direct competition with your children and grandchildren!

She violated the trust of the hardworking people in the 14th district by embracing more aid for illegal, undocumented citizens without any regard for the struggle that we face when trying to educate our children. Without any clear caveat or pathway to citizenship for these undocumented students, we all really need to ask ourselves if this is a person that you want to represent you and our Republican values up in Hartford.

Furthermore, the admiration by Representative Staneski of the current Democratic State Senator, Gayle Schlossberg, who is not running for re-election, is concerning. In her announcement for this open seat, Staneski said in a press release that she has "tried to emulate" Schlossberg's qualities.

The answer is clear to me. Vote for a real Republican who will not hide behind supposed altruistic votes which only support the continuing control of the Democrats over our beautiful state along with the decline of values and disrespect of Connecticut citizens.

On Aug. 14, to all Milford, Orange, West Haven and Woodbridge voters:

Vote 4A for Anthony "Tony G" Giannattasio and return Connecticut to the people!

Michele Gregorio

Herbert: Friends ready to celebrate her 100th

Fund as a way to leave a lasting legacy.

Community House Board President, Bill Heffernan, marveled at Pat's commitments and achievements.

"To me, her commitment to the Community House and its work is unmatched for anybody over that length of time. Particularly moving to me is that Pat never loses sight of the real purpose of the Community House, which is helping people. I can still hear her say, 'If we don't take care of each other, who will?' and I think that sentiment sums up what Pat is all about. She's just phenomenal."

Pat Herbert is certainly one of a kind, and the West Haven Community House has been very fortunate, indeed, to have her in its corner. Friends of Patricia Herbert are invited to join in a reception at the Community House on Tuesday, Aug. 21, between 1-3 p.m., and to share congratulatory wishes on this milestone birthday for an extraordinary woman. Guests are encouraged to donate to the Patricia Herbert Endowment Fund in her honor.

Please call (203) 934-5221 to reserve a place at the reception.

Lowry: Socialism

control costs.

President Barack Obama had to promise that if you like your health care you can keep it because any change to private insurance is so toxic. Medicare-for-all would replace the employer-based system entirely for more than 150 million people. It wouldn't matter how much they liked their insurance -- it would be gone as a matter of definition.

Republicans need to continue to develop and push their own ideas to reduce health care costs and adjust to the new reality where socialism doesn't simply represent a laugh line, but a battle that needs to be won.

Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

The Hubbard Family

To know the whole story of the Hubbard family, one must take a trip backward through time to the Ninth Century A.D. It is there that the first recorded history of the family appears, in the persons of Ragnar Lodbrog, a Viking Sea-King, and his two sons Hingua and Hubba. In those days, the shores of the Baltic, the Orkneys, the Hebrides, Scotland and Ireland all suffered at their hands. In France during 845 A.D. they devastated both banks of the Seine, all the way up to Paris, which they conquered. That city was saved from destruction by the payment to the Vikings of 7000 pounds of silver—truly an enormous ransom. A favorite tactic of Ragnar's, as it is told, was to attack Christian cities during their feast-days, while most of the soldiers were in church.

Years after the taking of Paris, Ragnar and his sons took part in an invasion of England in 866 AD, during which Ragnar was taken prisoner and killed. Later, his sons avenged his death by capturing a large portion of eastern England and taking control of it. Next, they successfully attacked southern England, capturing still more territory.

In 878, Hingua and Hubba, with a fleet of 23 ships, ravaged the coast of South Wales; it was there that Hubba met his end during a counterattack by his enemy Odun, the Saxon leader. There, Odun captured Hubba's flag, the standard of Ragnar, upon which was the woven image of a raven.

Later that year, Hingua invaded Ireland and was killed there. Subsequently, the descendants of Hingua and Hubba embraced England as their home, and made their lives there. According to "One Thousand Years of Hubbard History" by Edward Warren Day (1895), the families acquired an interest in English soil and thereafter helped defend England against subsequent invaders. They were loyal to their adopted country and during Britain's advance toward commercial and agricultural supremacy became her most skilled and reliable husbandmen. The Hubbard family claims Hubba as their first recorded ancestor, and the source for the family name.

The Hubbard family is one of the oldest New England families, having been here for almost four hundred years—in fact, the Hubbards have been in the New Haven area for over three hundred years! The earliest person named Hubbard, according to Day's book, is John Hubbard of Monks Eleigh, Suffolk, born in 1230 AD. A survey of genealogies on www.ancestry.com shows that any Hubbard who traces their history back this far invariably traces it to this John Hubbard.

By the mid to late 1500's, many Hubbards had become Protestants and were persecuted under Queen Mary I of England. Although Queen Elizabeth I ended this persecution, subsequent reforms in the Church of England displeased many Protestants. Hubbards were among the earliest English settlers of New England, coming to America as part of the Protestant migration from England in the early 1600's.

It is through such as the Hubbard family ancestors that we can trace the events of the early days of New England, and the birth of an American nation. The first Hubbard ancestor to arrive in New England was William Hubbard (1594-1670) who sailed on the Defence and arrived in the Massachusetts Bay in 1635.

He became a road surveyor for the fledgling colony, and a Magistrate Deputy of the General Court. His son, Rev.

William Hubbard, Jr. was a Puritan minister in Ipswich Massachusetts.

The first Hubbard ancestor to reside in Connecticut was Dr. (Col.) John Hubbard, a physician, poet and judge in New Haven; he graduated from Yale with a masters degree in 1730, and subsequently fought in the French and Indian War. His son Rev. John Hubbard, Jr. also graduated from Yale, and became the minister for the First Congregational Church of Meriden.

At one time, what was to become Hubbard Road was nothing more than a pathway for those who lived in the area.

Duckpin bowlers

Connie Cappiello, white shirt, joins participants and counselors of the Washington Elementary School playground camp July 26 at the Woodlawn Duckpin Bowling Alley, 240 Platt Ave. The seventh annual duckpin bowl-athon, held July 26-27, was sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation's playground camp program in memory of Cappiello's son, former employee Ed

Cappiello Jr., and former employee Valerie DeFonzo-Withington, who died of long-term illnesses. The city's six playground sites participated in the benefit and raised $1,200 for scholarship funds in Cappiello's and Withington's names. Winkle Bus Co. donated the bus transportation to get the bowlers to the venue.

Singin' on Green has 1st showing

By Michael P. Walsh
Special to the Voice

The city rolled out the inaugural installment of its new summer series, Singin' on the Green: Movies & Bands, this week.

The series premiered with a showing of "Mamma Mia!" the 2008 jukebox musical romantic comedy.

Organizers said the free series, held Wednesday nights, features three concerts performed on The John C. Ireland Bandstand and two high-definition movies shown on a 20-by-12-foot projection screen at Campbell Avenue and Main Street.

People are encouraged to bring blankets or chairs. There are no rain dates at the moment, organizers said.

Singin' on the Green is co-sponsored by West Haven United, an organization aimed at bringing the city's volunteer groups together, along with the West Haven Veterans Council and West Haven Vietnam Veterans.

Throughout the series, members of West Haven United will have an informational booth on the Green to register people for future volunteer efforts across the city.

The series continues with live music Aug. 22, followed by a showing of "Grease," the 1978 musical romantic comedy, at 7 p.m. Sept. 5.

It culminates Sept. 14 with dance party favorites performed by Cleo Blue and live music Sept. 19. Cleo Blue is exclusively sponsored by the Veterans Council.

Organizers will announce the time for Cleo Blue and the bands and times for Aug. 22 and Sept. 19 at a later date.

TAKE BACK CONNECTICUT.

CHANGE HARTFORD. ELECT TONY GIANNATTASIO NOW IS THE TIME FOR A REAL REPUBLICAN.

BRING BACK JOBS

• Dramatic job losses are forcing an exodus of young and old from our state. We must cut meritless regulations that have placed a stranglehold on businesses.

NO TAX HIKES. CUT SPENDING.

• Excessive property taxes are reducing family income and quality of life. We earn a paycheck and live within our means. Hartford must do the same.

ENVIRONMENT TO LAST LIFETIMES.

• As demonstrated by my environmental compliance background, I am committed to preserving our coastline and protecting our natural open space.

NO TAXING TOLLS. IMPROVE INFRASTRUCTURE.

• We must rebuild and repair our highways and bridges without implementing tolls. Funds allocated for these projects must be used wisely and for their intended purpose.

SAFE SCHOOLS

• I will be your voice and take action to fund security in our schools and support the efforts of law enforcement without hesitation.
